

McIntire's broadcasts, he said, Oh, half a minute of gospel and 39½ minutes of attacking the NCC! That was his impression of it.

When he started the broadcast he had a contest of whom would give it the best name. He would give a prize. Then he would take a proverb and discuss it. A proverb each day. He always had a lot of clever ideas that aroused interest.

As time went on he takes whatever comes up and gives it. I remember one time 10 or 15 yrs. ago when he had a radio program in NJ at 6 a.m. for one-half hour. Then he had his regular broadcast at 7:30. Then he would go into Shelton College and speak to the students for an hour and answer questions and talk with them till 12 noon when he had his noon broadcast for 12 to 12:30.

That's the sort of program he carried on. He seemed to have strength beyond most people I ever met. He could roll off the tip of his fingers what would interest a great many people. Of course when you do that that easily there's a tendency to decrease in it. I never listened a lot to his radio even from the start. I did not find it particularly interesting. Occasionally I enjoyed sitting by him when he gave the broadcast; he would give some rather clever remark and then he'd turn and smile. He'd chuckle and you could see he enjoyed thinking of these clever ways of saying things. It was fun to watch him.

He said to me when LIFE came out with a big article on the Bible attacking Christianity. It gave the whole critical theory. He asked me to speak on radio about LIFE's article. He said, Remember aim it at the high school graduate. Aim it at that level. I suppose that's the bulk of the people in the country, but my own interests are at a different educational level than that. So I have not listened to it much since the first month or two it started, except when with him.

According to reports she claims to have 3000 delegates in Cape May last week in the ICC meeting. A lot of those he raised the money to bring here from all over the world. You take people who have missionaries who have given them the gospel, families, children brought up with the gospel, the new missionaries coming in who don't believe the gospel any more and there ~~are a few~~ ==they are confused they don't know what to believe. You get them together and tell them we must stand for the gospel and you pay their way over here to meet with 3000 people who believe the gospel, it can tremendously strengthen them, and be a great blessing to them.

If he could give half his time to thinking through the problems of the ICC, I believe that could be a man's life work which would be tremendously worthwhile. But when he kind of flicks it off the top of his hand and is working in so many other things, it does not ~~work~~ work that way.
