

the questions would just illumine the whole field of knowledge for him. Of course, I was particularly interested in Harris then, and the last two years I was there Harris was taking courses for the Master's degree with me, and acting librarian and one of those years he was assistant registrar.

That gave him certain training to be registrar with us. He handled the registration and also taught a heavy load. I also taught a very heavy load, and then we looked around for a NT man. And McIntire remembered ~~one~~ who had been in his class graduating from Westminster, after the second year of Westminster, who had a church out in Western Maryland, I believe. His name was Alfred Eppard. Eppard had had a year of study in Edinburgh after he'd finished his work.

McIntire got in touch with Eppard and decided to invite him to the faculty. So we three were the only reall full time member of our faculty. Then there was a retired minister, a very fine man who was living in the Chicago area, he was retired and on a pension. We asked him to come and help us. He had a fine personality, the fellows liked him. I don't think he had much scholarship, but he was a good influence and gave some fine talk, in chapel. After two ~~xxxxxx~~ weeks he came to me and said that he found that his health just would not stand it; it was more than he could do. So he droppedout.

After two weeks we had to get somebody else to replace him. We== The previous summer they had asked me-- Dr. McIntire had suggested when Charlie Woodbridge resigned from the Independent Board, he said he was going to continue another 3 months to round things out, and they accepted his resignation effective immediately.

After all he had made big statements attacking the Board. It was no longer true to its base because it had independent people connected with it, most of whom Dr. Machen had gotten in the first place, so Dr. McIntire suggested that I go in there for two months on half time to the office during that summer. And I went in and stayed for 4 months, and worked from 7 a.m. till midnight ~~x~~ nearly every day, and had to pick it up where Woodbridge had dropped it. There were a lot of loose ends to get hold of, and I found there were letters from 2 or 3 mo. back asking all kinds of questions and they just had a note from Woodbride saying he was sending this month's check, and I am very busy right now and will answer your questions as I can get to it.

But he was spending all his time propagandizing for their policies on the Board for ~~xxxxxx~~2 for the last 2 or 3 months, and been visiting people and trying to get support in line with their ideas, Woodbridge really wasn't in sympathy with their ideas; he was showing a realx loyalty to them at that time. But anyhow the == I stepped in there and tried to get hold of the different aspects and read the missionary letters and decide the right answer to the question was and handle that work.
