

kept them up the way I wish I had, and I realize the importance and I want to do more of it." So I thought this would be a grand statement to have to give to our students, from a man of the standing he had.

So I said, Would you give me a statement ~~like~~ like that that I could use? He said, Sure, I'd be glad to. I'll write it out and mail it to you. I came home and 3 or 4 days later I got a statement, and it started out saying how foolish he'd been to neglect his Greek and Hebrew and what a mistake he'd made and a sort of a repentant sort of a statement. It was absolutely useless for propaganda. I never ever showed it to anybody. But it was very disappointing after what I had expected from him.

After a time Ken Kantzer was head of the Bible Department at Wheaton and he wanted to get this fellow to teach at Wheaton. He said to me, If we could only get him on the grounds; I don't care what he's doing; ~~if he'll be on the grounds, within 10 yrs.~~ he'll be president of the school, he said.

But he came, and it didn't work out. He became the president of the seminary in Denver and he's done a good work in Denver. I don't think he's kept up his Hebrew and Greek. I heard-- he does an awful lot of speaking all over the country. I heard when I was out there giving some lectures, somebody asked his little girl, What does your father do? She said, He mends broken hearts.

I think they have built a -- I think there's a counselling center that some organization has established in Denver now that they have given his name to. He's just retired as the president there. I was ~~xx~~ talking to the dead there in connection with a NIV meeting I attended. I had quite a lot of talks with this dean. He told me all kinds of things about his personal life, about the school and different things.

I mentioned something about this fellow might have been dean rather than president. He said, He'd never do for a dean. He can't say no to anybody!" How much truth there is to that I don't know. ~~He is a brilliant fellow. As a speaker he was~~ a star.

This St. Louis church by a small majority voted to call him. When he turned it down, they were just prostrate. The result was another fellow went out and candidated. This other fellow is one who is now greatly in demand as a speaker, and one who is a very fine speaker and spiritual influence. But I don't think as a platform man he compares with the first one. I don't think that for one or two appearances he would make anything like the impression the first one made. But the first one they had elected by barely a little more than a majority.

Another fellow came, and they unanimously invited him. So I think it was good for the church to get turned down. Then when he'd been pastor there for about 3 years, Francis Schaeffer was there a year and a half and then became Dr. Latham's assistant. He was there a couple of years. Then he told me he would like to
