second point. It is the meaning of the phrase which is used in this verse in Genesis 2:7 where God created man. He took of the dust of the earth and He breathed into it the breath of life and man became a " " .

Man became a " " . Now what did man become when God breathed that into him? That particular phrase simply on the basis of the English Bible, simply on the basis of the translation made by the translators of three hundred years ago might be thought of as possibly fitting in to an evolutionary theory. That is to say there was before that an animal and into this animal God breathed the breath of life. Well did^{n't} the animal have life before? Well, leaving that aside for the moment, God breathed something into this animal and the animal became a living soul, not just a part of the brute creation, not simply an animal that walks around on the earth and follow its instincts and lives its life and dies and that's the end, but there was a living soul there. God took a living soul and put it into an animal and you have a man. That interpretation is not impossible on the basis of the King James version but it is impossible on the basis of the original Scripture. I assigned to you for our assignment last week one day three sections to the assignment so that all of those who^{had} had sufficient Hebrew to do this particular section could do it while those who hadn't had enough had another section. This particular assignment which could be done with Young's concordance by one who knew no Hebrew but would be rather slow to do with Young's concordance but which can be done very rapidly with a Hebrew concordance by anyone who knows even a small amount of Hebrew, but to see what word is translated "soul" in Genesis 2:7--man became a living soul, and then to see how that word "soul" or that phrase "living soul" was used in the first eight chapters of Genesis. How many of you did that part of the assignment? Would you raise your hands? Now those of you who have done this, how many times did you find that in the last half of those eight chapters, Chapters 5-8? (Student) How many times? Where is that one?(Student) Perhaps the concordance which I used is inaccurate, but it didn't show any between Chapters 5 and 8. How many did you find in
