

retirement, but that the house which he was building would be continued by other hands and a Scripture reared which would be to the glory of God.