THE SINGLE EYE

A few years ago the statement was made that there were three great American well-fruit, agencies which were exerting wide-spread influence in China. These were a great oil company, a large tobacco corporation, and the various foreign mission organizations. It was said that the motto of all three was -- "Let there be light." The oil company was sending its agencies all over China in the endeavor to induce the Chinese to use lamps which wend employ the oil that they had to sell. The tobacco company had as its motto "A cigarette in the mouth of every man, woman, and child in China." The missionary agencies had as their purpose the dissemination of the light of the Gospel of Christ.

We wonder what would have happened if the oil company had discovered that some of its agents were inducing the Chinese to use candles and pointing out the disadvantages of kerosene lamps. We wonder what the tobacco company would have done if it had discovered that some of its agencies were engaged in spreading information regarding the detrimental effects of tobacco upon the human body. In either such case the corporation would have undoubtedly densed its connection with its agencies which were devoting part of their energies in working against its business, and would have sent out their agencies which would have devoted themselves with single eye to the purpose of the corporation.

We know what these secular organization would be in such a situation of some the situation.

This parable describes the position of foreign missions today. There are preaching the Word of God and at the same time sending others who are attacking the Scriptures. They send fine Godly workers into pioneer districts to preach Salvation through Christ. The leaders among those who are converted are sent into the large cities to be trained for Christian leadership, and there they are taught by men who deny the Word of God and endeavor to destroy their faith in its teaching. These Boards pursue an paclusive policy. They
