

And a few days later Dr. Brewer said, when he called again, his patient told him she~~y~~ no longer saw double. Her normal vision had returned. She had been unable to see the watch to ~~xtell~~ her father the time, with her tears she had felt so, and she had just got to where~~s~~ she couldn't see. She saw double. And now she told about it, and she faced the ~~xxx~~ situation, and she recovered from that particular symptom. And Dr. Brewer tried hypnotism on here~~y~~, and tried to get her to bring up these painful memories, and one after another he found how the different things were the result of something that had effected her when her father was sick. She had... He said it was most interesting the way she lost the ability to speak any language but the one acquired in her nursery days in England. She fell asleep at her father's bed and dreamed she saw a snake crawling out of the wall to her father, and she tried to cry out in her sleep but she couldn't. She tried to pray, and the only words that would come to her were those of an English nursery rhyme taught her by her governess, and waking up she could only speak English. But when she brought this out and talked about it, and faced it, she was able to talk German again after ~~xxx~~ that. And this Dr. Brewer told about all these experiences in which day after day he talked with this girl and ~~xxx~~ she brought up experiences she had had, and was so overwrought about her dying father, and one after another these things had just so affected her mind that she had lost these different abilities, and she got over the symptoms one by one, and until she was entirely well again. And Brewer said, Freud said, Why didn't you say anything about this case, 15 years before. Oh, he said, it was a very peculiar case, for certain reasons I didn't want to remember it. Well, Freud said, Don't you realize what you have discovered? Dr. Brewer gave him a soothing and indulgent look which an older and more seasoned scientist might give a younger and ~~xxxx~~ rasher one, and he said, What? Freud said, The cause of hysteria. And Brewer said, Nonsense! But that's where Freud got his idea. And then he had two cases very soon thereafter. He had a case of a woman who came to~~y~~ him. She was an English woman who had been
