

was putting on them the onus of carrying it out, because properly she was required not only to sign it, but to give orders that it be carried out. But they knew that the very survival of Protestantism in England depended upon the survival of ~~the~~ Elizabeth and the failure of the plots to destroy her, and one of them might succeed as long as Mary was there next in line and participating in the plots, and so Davison took upon himself the onus and took the order signed with Elizabeth's name, and went ~~xxxx~~ to the north of England ~~where~~ where Mary was in prison, and delivered the order with Elizabeth's signature, and ~~My~~ Mary was executed, and then Elizabeth declared her wrath against what he had ~~done~~ done. She had given him no orders to do it, and she ordered him to the tower. She did not keep him there long. He eventually was released but his career was ~~ended~~ ended, and his secretary had to go back to Scr ~~and~~ and look for a way of life which would not be dependent upon royal ~~faith~~ favor. So William Brewster, instead of having a great career at the court as he might have had, after having the experience ~~of~~ and the training in Cambridge and in London, and at the court and over in the Netherlands, now went back to Scr ~~and~~ and there was successful, after a little difficulty in succeeding his father as postmaster of Scr ~~,~~ , and in the providence of ~~God~~ God, this was to help preserve Puritanism for the future, because after ~~time,~~ time, a ~~man~~ a minister in the area began preaching wonderful Gospel sermons, and William Brewster became greatly ~~the~~ interested in these sermons, and then he got the minister to move from the town where he was holding the services, and hold them in Scr ~~'s~~ 's home, and they were not interfered with by Elizabeth, though it was against the regulations. They carried on, and a group of Christians developed a great love for the Word of God as they listened to the godly sermons given here in Brewster's
