

them were well prepared and had wide knowledge they might be able to build a real civilation. Again, no could tell for sure that he would not be one of the survivors. If we could be sure of such a holocaust ten years from now, that might be all the more reason ~~xxxx~~ to get become more thoroughly prepared toady.

I would like to make a comparison between conditions today and those in the beginning of the Dark Ages. Yet we must remember that things could move a great deal faster today then they did ~~it~~ then. Those people came afoot or on ~~hox~~ horseback. Today they might come in ~~tax~~ tanks or in planes.

While we are spending billions in ~~xxxxxx~~ the race to get men on the moon the Russians ^{were} are making us think that they were interested in beating us to that, but actually they are spending their effort in developing satellites that can go above us and be prepared to drop bombs on us when ordered to do so, and thus to attempt to bring us under their subjection.

I would like to learn more about the history of the ^{fifth} and ^{sixth} centuries A.D. and see how the Dark Ages came. There are many parallels to conditions today, although of course there are many differences.

I was once very much interested in looking at the volume of Schaff's Church History that is entitled "300 to 600 A.D." 300 to 600 A.D. ~~Actually~~ the next one starts at 590 because there were a number of things that happened between 590 and 600 that were important as leading up to what followed. So it might have been better to call this volume 300 to 590 A. D. ~~xx xxx~~ "300 to 590." However, as I went through the book I looked at all the matters that were dated anywhere between 300 and 460, and then I looked for matters dated between 460 and 600. I believe that I found that at least ^{9/10th} ~~9/10th~~ of the events referred to had occurred in the first 55% of the time ~~it~~ while the last 45% of the time really had very little told about it in the book. Actually we don't know a great deal about what happened during those days. Was it about 420 (or some such date) when the Romans withdrew their troops from Britain? After that I believe for about 150 years we have no record of events in Britain at all. We know of course ~~that~~ that the Britons with the Roman army removed, felt themselves at the mercy of the Scots
