

which Wycliffe translated, "Thou shalt do no murder." The Heb. has other words that mean kill. This means murder. The OT teaches that men should fight for what is right. It teaches that they should have capital punishment and remove the wickedness from the land. The idea that we should not kill, is not a Biblical idea, but it's been spread by the modernists so assiduously now that people think that the worst thing that could be done is to kill anybody.

There is a Christian scientific magazine which I receive which recently got a new editor. Mostly it has good articles about the relation of science and the Bible. But not long ago this man read an editorial and he said which should we do? Serve God by killing or serve God while ~~enslaved~~ enslaved? He said the answer ought to be perfectly obvious. The answer isn't at all the way he takes it. He has been so brainwashed with this idea that for you to kill anyone is such a terrible thing, it would be far(less) better to let the communists come in and make slaves of us all! But I would like to tell him the communists would not make a slave of him, they would kill him.

They have caused this tremendous ^{fuss} ~~fuyl~~ all over our country about four college students being shot when they had destroyed property, burnt down the ROTC building, were causing a tremendous riot and were causing this tremendous excitement about the idea that soldiers after seeing little children pull grenades out and kill people and men dressed up as women and using all these wicked tactics in Vietnam that the Viet Cong are using, that these people in this case may have killed a group of civilians. There's tremendous excitement about it. But the N. Vietnamese when they took them in cold blood they killed over'
