active on several continents. A number of them are heads of colleges or theological seminaries.   Many of them are in various denominational groups, standing there for God's Word, presenting His truth. There may be differences on minor ~~pix~~ points, but there are many of whom the Seminary can be ~~xpx~~ proud.

In a few cases, in a very few, ~~xxxxx~~ graduates have ~~forxx~~ forsaken the central teaching of the Gospel. I know of no other seminary of the age of of which Faith,~~which~~/I do not have reason to think that the number who have forsaken the cause of Christ is many times as great as the number who have done so among the graduates of Faith. I do not boast about this. Let him who thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall. I praise God for what He has accomplished through us.

I think of those old pioneers at Jamestown and at Plymouth. I think of the way God in His providence enabled a great nation to be established.
I think of the ease of life of those of us who live here now, and ~~xxxx~~ wonder whether we are worthy of the sacrifices and efforts of our progenitors.

I think of how we left P° and gave up so many earthly advantages ~~in~~ and stepped out alone, on faith, in order that ~~xxx~~ we should be sure that God's Word was absolutely at the center of our efforts, and how God has blessed. He has given us this wonderful property where our students now life and where our classes and administrative offices now held(?).
Many times in the last few years someone has said to me, "We used to talk about our fine faculty, but now all we talk about is our wonderful buildings, and our fine property." I wonder whether this is right. May God deliver ever from making this mistake. God has given us a faculty second to none in the world.
He has given us a group of wonderfully consecrated men, every one of them absolutely loyal to the Word of God. He has given us a group of men of find scholarship and of such teaching ability that I can ~~xx~~ say without hesitation that I doubt that there is an educational organizational, whether
