

that another of us shall in patient suffering show forth the will of God, show forth the glory of God and lead many through the patient endurance of what God leads them into. Making the decision the best you can then be content with the result. Don't ~~✓~~ grumble about it <sup>them</sup> or look back and wish you had made a different decision. If you have made the decision the best you can looking ~~to~~ to God for leadership then you can trust Him that you are going in the direction He wants and that He ~~had~~ has a purpose in it. We read in Phil.4 what Paul says = Phil.4:11b-13: <sup>R</sup> I have learned that in whatever state I am in this to be content, I know both how to be abased and I know how to abound. Everywhere and in all things I am instructed both to be full and to be hungry, both to abound and to suffer need. I can do all things through Christ which strengths me."

We don't know what God's will is over the long course for any one of us, and so we cannot tell in this life ~~all of~~ ~~===~~ always whether the decisions we have made have turned out in what we think is the right way or in the wrong way. But we can know that if we have done our best to decide, and have looked to the Lord for leadership, and put our trust in Him that the way it turns out is what He wants and what is His purpose and the way that He will accomplish the most for His purposes through us. Finally

12. Look to God to overrule if necessary, If after doing all this you have made a mistake; if after doing all this you are getting into a situation, a situation which would not accomplish the purposes that God meant for your life, you don't ~~have~~ have to worry about it. You can know that God if He wants things different will overrule. We don't look to circumstances to guide where we go, but God can make circumstances such that we can't ~~possibly~~ possibly go in a certain direction. He can make circumstances to completely overrule mistakes
