

of the house. He saw a man walking down the street. He came up to him. "What do you know about Grace? he asked. The man said, "Grace who?" Moody stopped and explained to him that he meant God's grace, and explained what it was. The man turned away without a word. He told someone else, "This fellow Moody is getting to be a real fanatic. He's a nuisance. He comes and bothers you about things you are not even interested in." Moody thought, "I've made a great mistake. In my enthusiasm I have driven this man away." Five days later the man came to see Moody. He said, "Your words have stuck in my mind ever since I saw you." He said, "I can't get away from it. I'm thinking of God's grace. I am a sinner, I don't deserve God's grace at all, but you say it is available. Tell me more about it." Moody led the man to the Lord. He seemed to have used the wrong time, but it was God's time. It is always the right time to do w right. ~~XXXXX~~ Any time is a good time to do right. There come times of trouble in every life. There are times when everything seems to go wrong. These times are in God's hands. God knows the time. God understands the purposes; He knows the results. "My times are in Thy hands."

Do you have a right to say that your times are in God's hands? Are you really trying to do His will? Are you == What are you thinking of? Are you thinking of the little things you can eat something that you enjoy very much. Are you thinking of how much you would enjoy it, or are you questioning whether the other person has enough? Are you questioning whether there is a chance to help someone? To show the love of God in your heart? Are they your times or are they God's times? Are you trying to hold the times in your hands, or are the == you recognizing that they are in God's hands and taking your hand off of them but stepping forward to utilize the time for His purposes?
