

Examine Yourselfes Dec. 13, 1983

- 1 When a senior in college and editor of campus paper he wrote an editorial pointing out the value of exams
 - They show us how we are doing ourselves
 - They force you to review the material
 - Give an overall view
 - Strengthen recollection

- 2 REcommend an exam at end of course; before could get credit he would have to take another exam the next year

Socrates: the unexamined life is not worth living

- 3 Matter of procrastination
Matter of relaxation
Be receptive of criticism to help your improvement

- 4 "whether ye be in the faith"
 - Have you stated the doctrine correctly
 - Most important is our attitude toward Christ

- 5 Cornell professor (C. Sagen?) gave TV series on the universe that would lead one to despair.
Henley's Invictus

Will probably win more to Christ by your life and attitude than through your words, but your life is a sounding board for your words and need both.

Best exam is self-examination
