Buckelmann's idea of penultimate accent quite wrong. We do not know whether on penult or antepenult. Rec'd
We can simply say Baer - J. P. Bergs that short final vowels were lost.

Probably the accent was very far back, as in other Semitic languages ~~verb~~ problem -
How do we account for shift of accent from ^{near} beginning to ~~near~~ end of the word? ?

Probably a number of factors entered in.

1. Perhaps a strong sentence accent than in other Sem. languages
2. Perhaps very strong accent on definite articles led to moving of accent of word toward end

Prominence given to construct state
