

A conquering Semitic people after took over the language of the conquered settled people.

Also some historical evidences point to Aramaean origin of the Hebrews.

"^{the Israelites} There is no evidence at all that they spoke Arabic."

A question to be settled - why do Hebrew and Assyrian go so close to each other in their cuneiformism

More than 500 yrs before Hammurabi's the Akkadian language was so corrupt it would seem 2000 yrs like than that of Hammurabi.

The Israelites and the Assyrians appear to be very similar ethnically, from monumental depictions
