

and said there wasn't any. But if you think of all the space ~~and~~ that we can observe and compare and apply them to this rule. The amount of space that we have gone it it would ~~abe-~~ amount to about 1/4 of an inch. Actually, we have a long ways to go. We have make tremendous way to go before we have covered any amount of space. We have made tremendous steps forward but it is ~~entirely~~ a tiny, tiny ~~far-~~ fraction of the real thing.

Ans. Yes, there have been those who have taken the ~~statements~~ ~~stt~~ statements in the Bible that a man has lived so ~~lan~~ long and rules so long, and adds them together and figures how long it is ~~back-~~ back to Adam, and there have been about 100 different figures made that way. And personally I would say that Adam lived somewhere between 50,000 years ago and a million. But if it is further out, the Bible doesn't say one way ~~of~~ or the other. Now, Archbishop Ussher, a very brilliant man, made an attempt to arrange the figures we have in such a way as to get back 4000 years before the birth of Christ. ~~He was not~~ The Bible doesn't give us any idea of how long ago Adam was created, and it certainly gives no idea how long ago the creation of the earth was before the creation of Adam. And it gives absolutely no idea of how long ago the creation of the universe was before the creation of the world, so that is one of the many questions that the Bible doesn't ... (Q) Well the word day as used in the Old Testament usually means a light period between two periods of darkness, and that in some parts of the world is two-four ^{in mid-winter,} hours long ^{mid-} and in some parts of the world is 18-20 hours long in ^{summer.} I'm not sure that there is any thing in the Bible that is a 24 hour day. I don't know. But a day ~~is~~ is usually a light period between two periods of darkness, but there may be a day that is a combination of darkness and light, but there are quite a few cases where the word day is used for a period of indeterminate length, as in Genesis 1, ~~is~~ it speaks ~~of the~~ of the six days of creation, and in Genesis 2,
