

4/18/76

-12

took the bus over there and left it and I thought I'd make the whole trip across and back in one day. Of course I did not have anything to carry, nothing but water and that got hot and I threw it away. Very foolishly. As a result without water I did not make it to the top. I lay down at Indian Gardens and spent the night. I came up the next morning. But if you wanted to you could easily make it over the Hermit. It winds around quite a bit. Depends on the heaviness of your pack of course.

(It s-ems to me if I went down Roaring Spring, went down here to the River, then what is this called?)