

not only for Dr. Allis but also some for Dr. Machen and for other and, I believe, some for ~~the~~ other people who were of the conservative group in the seminary.

Miss Robinson was ^avery strong supporter of the attitude of the conservatives in the faculty and ~~was~~ quite emotional about it. She had absolutely no use for those who wished to compromise with liberalism and particularly for Dr. ~~Robert~~ J. Ross Stevenson Dr. and Charles R. Erdman who both claimed to be conservative in their views but did everything they could to advance the cause of the liberals. ~~Miss~~ Miss Robinson had been in Europe for a few weeks and was going back on a certain boat ship from England. Dr. Allis came over with his chum of many years, Clarence Macartney, and in order to go back with her on the boat, ship, spent only five days in Europe. The full explanation of this became clear to me later on when I read in a magazine, I forget anyway, when I heard that Dr. Allis and Miss ~~Robinson~~ Robinson had been married.

Dr. Allis told me later that he had wanted to get married on - I forget whether it was his birthday or her birthday--but that she had (this was in ~~the~~ July I believe) but that she had wanted to wait until the next May. Then he said, "We compromised and made it the day after his birthday. (closing quoted?) On that day they had the wedding (~~as~~ as I found out learned later) in a little chapel of Princeton Seminary. I believe they now have a larger chapel but then it was a building that would seat a couple of hundred people--which was quite adequate for the size of the student body at that time. Someone ~~said~~ said that if as Miss Robinson and Dr. Allis waited for the ~~ser~~ to begin the service, if she had known what was happening in the front vestibule of the chapel they wondered if whether she would have been willing to go through with it. She had asked Dr. Allis, "Do we have to invite those Dr. Stevenson and Dr. Erdman?" and Dr. Allis said, "Of course we must invite every member of the faculty." So they had sent them invitations but she hoped they would not come. Dr. Erdman, however, came was one of the first to arrive and stood in the vestibule greeting everybody everyone who came in such a way that one would ~~have~~ almost have thought it was his party. Someone said that if Miss Robinson had known what was happening they (plural) (someone?) wondered ~~what~~ if whether she
