

United States to vote on this question, shall a certain man be ⁽⁴⁾, what hours shall he work, a direct decision is something that simply wouldn't work because there wouldn't be enough people who would know enough about that particular thing. A real control of the people is something which in indirect way rather than directly and in the end you're going to have more of the popular control. ^(4 1/2) If the representatives ideas of a lot of people on how are we going to vote on this or that, but the feeling of the people who are most interested is shown by what they do. If somebody is really interested, and the rest of the people who don't care don't have to cast a vote, but gradually the interest of those who are concerned make themselves known. ⁽⁵⁾ Quest.

Ans. I heard about a legislature in the mid-west somewhere about 20 years ago during the depression passing an action of simplifying engineering there that the what they called ^{5 3/4} ^{??????}, that's the relation of the diameter to the circumference

The thing that decides it in the end isn't whether it is a decision made or what the people feel like, but whether the decisions made are ^{what} in the end are what the people desire that is whether it will make them happy or unhappy in the end. And the question is how are we going to achieve this result. I think just at this point, I'd like to say a word about this matter of republican. You know there are a great many people—I have found this in many of our universities--that the American system is a very unsatisfactory inefficient democracy and that the British system is far more democratic than ours, and the British parliamentary system has been adopted by many countries. ⁽⁷⁾ The French is essentially like the British system. Now the difference between the two is this. In England the Prime Minister can ⁽⁷⁾ the law. The parliament put it out and put in a new prime minister. ^(7 1/4) And in England they can have a new election next month. But over here

, and over here we have senators and representatives, we have governors, we have all of this ^(7 1/2) by different groups. Now suppose that all our people in one state would decide today that they didn't want Harry Truman for president. He wouldn't without a revolution be moved prior to the next election. Now in England, according to their
