

traveling somewhere, who looked somewhat like them and who did some rather mean thing to me, and I had forgotten the experience till I thought back to it, but it was with me an instinctive feeling of discomfort at first relationship with somebody who was somewhat similar to that person. I was so thankful some years ago after I passed through a miserable experience, a miserable experience, and the people with whom I had the experience happened several of them to be people with a Holland background, and certain characteristics came out which are, some of them, rather characteristic of the Dutch people, came out in a way which was very unpleasant, very unpleasant, and I was so thankful that right after that experience I was thrown with another man from a Dutch background who proved to be one of the finest men I'd ever known and was helpful to me in so many ways and completely eradicated that prejudice which would have come into my mind because of these unpleasant experiences happened to be with people from that particular background. He had these same qualities that the others had but they were used in a good way rather than in a bad way. We must watch out when we think we are being led by our feelings, whether it is our prejudices due to some experience in the past or whether again it is the result of something we've eaten or some physical condition in which we are which makes us feel good or bad in the particular situation. When I was in Bible Institute one of the fellows there showed me a trunk which he had recently secured. It was a lovely trunk, it was made by hand, and made with special arrangements, all the work, it must have cost a great deal of money to get the materials and a great deal of work of a very expert person to make it, and he I said, my, this must have cost you a tremendous amount of money. No, he said, there's one of the other students here who never seemed to like to get down to studying, he doesn't feel like studying, he's not particularly of that type of mind, but he loves to work with his hands, and he told me one day he didn't have liberty to study but he had liberty to make a trunk, and he got busy and he put in hours in this trunk, and then when he got this lovely trunk made, and put hours and hours of skilled work on this trunk, he said to me one day, you know I don't have any liberty to keep that trunk, I just don't have a feeling of liberty, so he said I want to give it to you. So this man received this lovely trunk because of this situation, and it may have been the
