

with $10,000.00 and say Every time they say Buy a stock, we will put a certain proportion of the money into it. Every time they say to sell it, we will sell it, and see what happens. Well, they found that with one of the systems he would have lost ~~xxx~~ all of his money within one year. With another one, it would have taken three years. With another one, his money would have lasted four years. But with everyone of the ~~xx~~ systems, he would have lost all of his money. Then he took the various predictions they had made and he would take a prediction about certain stock. He would take the stock's name, then he would say, Shall we recommend buy ~~xxx~~ or sell. We will just flip a dice for it and make that recommendation in that way, and ~~say-xxx~~ saw what he got. And he worked out a system that way, and then tried and found that he would have lost his money that way too but it would take a little longer than by any of the systems that you could have purchased for a couple of hundred dollars. Well, ~~it's~~ ^{is} it's amazing to see how mistaken ~~xx~~ people really are when they set out to predict the future. I remember during the last world war, repeatedly we heard, "When this war is over, there will be the greatest opportunity for ~~Christain~~ Christian missions in China ~~tha~~ this world has ever seen. The Chinese people are so grateful for all that the Americans are doing in this war, and are ~~xxx~~ grateful for the American missionaries during this last war. It will be the greatest opportunity. The opportunity of American missions in China." Within ten years, practically every American missionary was out of China. The exact opposite of what was predicted took place. I believe it was in 1940 or the end of ~~xx~~ 1939 that I happened to be rumaging around in an attic somewhere, and I came across a copy of Liberty Magazine. I don't remember how ~~h~~ many of you remember the old Liberty magazine which was something like the Saturday Evening Post and Colliers, only a bit smaller. But I happened to come across this and ~~it~~ was intrigued by the title on the cover. "What is in store for 1939?" This sounded very interesting. I opened it up. This was just one year ~~xxx~~ later. And I found that it said that
