

THEREFORE , STAND, by Wilbur M. Smith.
Boston: Wilde, 1945.

..... Even in theological studies, it has been said by a very careful student of religion that "The philosophy of both Barth and Brunner are based chiefly upon Kant ... Brunner says frankly that he regards the critique of Kant as standing nearest in their basal tendency to the Christian faith." (FOOTNOTE: R. Birch Hoyle: The Teaching of Karl Barth. New York. 1930. p. 71.)

PAGE 15 of SMITH.