

Fearfully and Wonderfully Made

copy verse from AV

-- Psalm 139:14

Although the science of medicine is only too ready to admit that the limits of its information are very great, and that there is much of tremendous importance that is not yet known about the human body, we all marvel at the vastness of the increase of medical knowledge in ~~the~~ recent years. The use of sulfa drugs, the carrying of blood plasma to the battle fields, the many wonderful cures brought about by the use of vitamins:-- all these make us ~~wonder~~ ^{wonder} at the intricate construction of the human body. The divine wisdom has been active in our creation, and has utilized in our formation hundreds of principles of every type of science. Surely we are fearfully and wonderfully made! As we look at ourselves, we may well pause to ~~reflect upon the greatness of~~ ^{reflect upon the greatness of} ~~the One who made us.~~

Psychiatry and psychology are constantly adding to their knowledge of the human mind, but they also are ready to confess that their ~~very~~ understanding of human personality covers but a fraction of the ground to be explored. No one of us can fully understand himself, for we often find ourselves torn by feelings and emotions which are a surprise to ourselves. Grateful as we are for all the help that human science can bring us, often we would be utterly baffled if this were our only recourse. He who created us is Himself the great Physician. He understands our varied needs, ^{but} ~~as no human being even ^{do} ~~partially~~ is able fully to understand them.~~ In His Word we find their solution, as we approach Him in prayer. A wisdom far surpassing all that the most skillful man can ever acquire ~~yet~~ belongs to our Maker. Let us praise the Lord, who doeth all things well.
